Republican State Platform.

The Republicans of Nebraska, re-affirming the principles that carried the Nation successfully through the crisis of rebellion, the dangers of reconstruction, and the readjustment of the people, and meeting the issues of the hour in the same unflinching spirit with which they confronted the grave problems that met them on the threshold of their power, declare:

1. Elections shall be free in the south as in the north; equal rights of all citizens, as ordained by the amended constitution, shall be guaranteed, and no citizen shall be denied the right of suffrage on the basis of race or color.

2. The public service shall be elevated on a basis of a pure, economical, and efficient administration of affairs, the tenure of an office to be secured for the term prescribed in the commission, during a faithful performance of the duties, and the rights and privileges of an official, as a sovereign citizen of the republic, should not be interfered with, so long as they are exercised without neglect of his duties.

3. Sincerely seeking fraternal relations with the states lately in rebellion, we summon the people to vigilance and unflinching warfare against the demand that the damages sustained by the people of those states, in consequence of the unprovoked war waged against the Union, shall be paid out of the national treasury; and the raids of the solid south in anticipation of the control of the national purse, must be met with the same unflinching spirit of resistance which followed the attempt to take possession of our public property with an armed hand.

4. The authority conferred upon congress by the constitution to regulate interstate commerce, and the authority reserved to the several states in their domestic affairs is amply sufficient to afford the remedy against the growing oppressions of powerful monopolies, and the rights of the people should be jealously guarded against extortions and tyranny on the part of corporations and their combinations, unbridled by adequate state and national legislation.

5. The faith of the nation shall be sacred and its contracts respected in spirit and in letter, and the nation's honor shall be held as inviolate as the nation's life.

6. We hail the restoration of the reviving trade and industry, and congratulate the people upon this practical evidence that the depression which grew out of the financial disorders forced upon us by the rebellion is giving place to returning confidence and permanent prosperity which can rest upon a fixed monetary standard, settled values, and full security and certainty for the future.

7. The greenback shall not be dishonored or depreciated; shall be made as good as gold; the laborer's dollar shall have a real value, which will give him the certainty of his value, which will give him the certainty of his value, which will give him the certainty of his value.

8. The demonetization of silver worked a fraud upon the people by crippling the nation's resources for public use in the market. The act restoring its legal tender character, and providing for the coinage of standard silver dollars, was timely and just; but its collection should be free, and the $2,000,000 trade dollars now in circulation should be made legal tender.

9. The record of the democratic party in its recent attempt to steal the presidency by violence, intimidation and murder during the campaign at the polls; by stuffing ballot boxes, falsifying returns and obstructing the canvassing of votes; by bribery of electors; by pretended returns from false and fraudulent elections; followed by the device of an extra constitutional method of canvassing the electoral votes; its repudiation of its own off-spring; the electoral commission—as soon as it failed to carry out its party designs; its plot to precipitate anarchy and revolution by filibustering in the house of representatives until the expiration of the constitutional time in which the electoral canvass should be completed; and the corrupt bargain which it attempted to consummate in a precedent to the abandonment of the conspiracy, illustrate the spirit of the so-called democracy, being subversive of the constitution, destruction of public law and order, and in contempt of public honor and decency. We arraign this party as a constant disturber of public tranquility; as a wanton foe of public security in its persistent assaults upon the authority and stability of its established government; as false to the nation in clipping its army in a time of uncertainty and danger; as guilty of false pretenses in claiming for the democracy a house a reduction in public expenditures, to be replaced by deficiency bills; as dependent upon the nation's credit and thereby subversive to its demands; as joining hands with the misceled greenback-work and labor party to repudiate the national obligations and to support its wild schemes of inflation and fiat money; and its further or greater success would be a national calamity.

10. We earnestly protest against the proposition to withdraw the public lands west of the 10th principal meridian from settlement under the homestead, pre-emption and timber culture laws, and we demand that these same practices be removed to the territory set apart exclusively for their uses.

11. We have all good citizens of whatever previous political ties to unite with the republican party, the only effective bulwark against national repudiation and disgrace, the only organization capable of preserving the national honor. This great emergency appeals to all republicans to rise to its high obligation and join heart and hand for the triumph of the principles upon which the security and welfare of the Republic depend.

A cat-bird was caught in a novel trap at Canton, Mass., the other day. It alighted on a half-open shell of a fresh-water clam, which suddenly closed its claws, holding it a prisoner until a woman set it free.

Darwin C. Loveland.

Our candidate for representative of the first district, was born at Parkman, Genoa county, Ohio, April 19th, 1846, and is consequently thirty-two years of age. At the age of eight years his father died, since which time he has mainly worked his own way, aided in his earlier years by his mother, who now lives at Akron, O., and to whom he is very fondly attached, as all dutiful sons are. During Mr. Loveland's youth he clerked in a store, thus earning money to purchase clothing and enable him to attend school. Besides the district school of those times, he attended the Western Reserve Institute, gaining a fair knowledge of the common branches of education. He crossed "the plains" to Idaho, California and British Columbia, in 1863, and after spending three years on the Pacific coast, returned home. In 1868, he came to Nebraska a second time, locating at Elkhorn Station, and engaged with Messrs. Loveland & Creighton in the shipment of cattle. In 1873 he came to Columbus, went into partnership with Fred. Reimer, and afterwards with L. E. Ellis, with whom he is now associated as carpenter and contractor.

In the character of his mind Mr. Loveland is intensely practical, and, having from an early age been taught to rely upon himself, he has attained to a marked degree of independence and force of character. He is a man of vim and push, and, understanding the sentiments and the interests of the people, his practical good common sense enables him to see the heart of a subject, as soon as proposed.

As much has already been said in this campaign about corporations, and the readjustment of the people, and meeting the issues of the hour in the same unflinching spirit with which they confronted the grave problems that met them on the threshold of their power, declare:

1. Elections shall be free in the south as in the north; equal rights of all citizens, as ordained by the amended constitution, shall be guaranteed, and no citizen shall be denied the right of suffrage on the basis of race or color.

2. The public service shall be elevated on a basis of a pure, economical, and efficient administration of affairs, the tenure of an office to be secured for the term prescribed in the commission, during a faithful performance of the duties, and the rights and privileges of an official, as a sovereign citizen of the republic, should not be interfered with, so long as they are exercised without neglect of his duties.

3. Sincerely seeking fraternal relations with the states lately in rebellion, we summon the people to vigilance and unflinching warfare against the demand that the damages sustained by the people of those states, in consequence of the unprovoked war waged against the Union, shall be paid out of the national treasury; and the raids of the solid south in anticipation of the control of the national purse, must be met with the same unflinching spirit of resistance which followed the attempt to take possession of our public property with an armed hand.

4. The authority conferred upon congress by the constitution to regulate interstate commerce, and the authority reserved to the several states in their domestic affairs is amply sufficient to afford the remedy against the growing oppressions of powerful monopolies, and the rights of the people should be jealously guarded against extortions and tyranny on the part of corporations and their combinations, unbridled by adequate state and national legislation.

5. The faith of the nation shall be sacred and its contracts respected in spirit and in letter, and the nation's honor shall be held as inviolate as the nation's life.

6. We hail the restoration of the reviving trade and industry, and congratulate the people upon this practical evidence that the depression which grew out of the financial disorders forced upon us by the rebellion is giving place to returning confidence and permanent prosperity which can rest upon a fixed monetary standard, settled values, and full security and certainty for the future.

Helpful Waldo Emerson is said to frequently get up in the night to jot down a thought, for fear he shall forget it.

The days are getting "short," and how many of us, alas! can sympathize with them.

A SHORT SERMON ON MANLINESS.
—Learn from your earliest days to endure your principles against the perils of ridicule; you can no more exercise your reason if you live in the constant dread of laughter, than you can enjoy your life if you are in constant terror of death. If you think it right to differ from the times, do it, however rustic, however antiquated, however pedantic it may appear, do it, not for insolence, but seriously and grandly—as a man who wears a soul of his own in his bosom, and did not wait till it was breathed into him by the breath of fashion.—Sidney Smith.

A widow who had just lost her husband, was weeping bitterly for the dear departed. A friend tried to console her. "No, no," said the fair mourner, "let me have my cry out. After that I shall think any thing about it."

A patient boy. He went to a neighbor's house for a cup of sour milk. "I haven't anything but set milk," said the woman pettishly. "I'll wait till it sours," said the obliging youth, sinking into a chair.

The time when a pious editor is excusable for being profane is when he jabs the wrong end of his pen holder in his ink-bottle and hastily shrives it behind his ear without wiping it off.

A young lady on being asked where her native place was, replied: "I have none; I am the daughter of a Methodist minister."

A book is man's best friend, and the only one he can shut up without giving offence.

FOR SALE.

The undersigned offers at private sale his farm two and a half miles north of the city consisting of 650 ACRES OF LAND, fifty acres under cultivation, and sixty acres of as good hay land as can be found, and under a portion of it is a very excellent quality of brick clay. The improvements upon the place are a two-story concrete dwelling, 20x30 ft., a comfortable and convenient house, a wind-mill; a large, substantial shelter for stock; shed and yards for hogs; corn crib; granary; tool house, etc., etc. Also 133 HEAD OF SHEEP, mostly ewes, besides horses, cows, steers, hogs, farming implements, etc. The place is a very excellent one for farming and stock raising—near the city with easy and quick access to market; a fifteen minutes' ride to the post office, the railroad depot, the telegraph office and church.

The site of the dwelling-house commands as fine a view as can be had of the country, for twenty miles in every direction and the place would not be offered for sale except that my increasing business in the city renders it desirable to give it my exclusive attention.
